VICKERS-VIMY AEROPLANE REACHES IRELAND SUNDAY; STORY OF THE TRIP IS TOLD

Flyers Become Lost in Fog and Narrowly Avert Disaster
PLANE LANDS IN BOG
Still Have Fuel Left When Ireland is Reached; England Jubilant

LONDON, June 15.—The non-stop trans-Atlantic air flight has been achieved. Piloted by Capt. Jack Alcock, British naval flyer, and navigated by Lieut. Arthur Whitten Brown, American, the Vickers-Vimy bombing plane plowed into the sand near Glenties, on the Irish coast, this morning at 9:40 o'clock, completing the 1,900 miles from St. John's, N. F., in sixteen hours and twelve minutes.

The landing was made at 9:40 o'clock, British summer time (3:25 a. m. Sunday, Chicago time). The remarkable flying time, averaging close to two miles a minute, is creditable to a favorable wind which at times added thirty miles an hour to the speed of the biplane.

Before coming to earth near the Glenties wireless station Alcock circled the wireless aerials, seeking the best spot to reach the earth. But no suitable ground was found, so he changed it in a bog.

The landing was rough. The fuselage bowed into the sand and the line on the under surface of the lower wings was ripped.

The wireless staff rushed to the aid of the aviators. They found Brown dazed and Alcock temporarily deafened by the force of the impact. As soon as they were able to be escorted to the wireless station they telegraphed the news to their friends, then had breakfast.

"That is the best way to cross the Atlantic," said Lieut. Brown after he had eaten.

The flight was a triumph of air navigation and brings the two daring aviators the $50,000 prize offered by the London Daily Mail for the first transatlantic flight.

Lieut. Brown plotted a course that brought the airplane to a midpoint on the west Irish coast. Glenties is a seaport and market town twenty-nine miles southwest of Westport.

When the Vickers-Vimy biplane driven by Capt. John Alcock was first sighted crossing the Irish coast, says a dispatch to the Daily Mail, from Glenties, Galway, an airplane flew out of the Oranmore airbase to render assistance. This machine landed near the Vimy but was wrecked, owing to the softness of the ground.

Fancy Navigating
When the Vickers-Vimy machine landed, Lieut. Arthur W. Brown, the navigator, said to Capt. Alcock:

"What do you think of that fancy navigating?" and the pilot of the machine responded:

"Very good."

The two men who had just completed an epoch-making voyage then shook hands.

When assistance reached the machine the two aviators were helped to the ground and it was found that Lieut. Brown was slightly injured on the nose and mouth by the jolt given them when it struck the ground. Both men were deaf and dazed and were unable to walk steadily for some minutes. They quickly recovered, however, and were escorted to the wireless station. They distributed cigarettes as souvenirs, and gave away the small dog and cat which were mascots during the trip. The entire equipment was ransacked by the downpour during the journey.

Describing the trip, Captain Alcock said the sun came out only once when the biplane had attained a height of 11,000 feet. Only three astronomical observations were possible. The altitude of the machine varied from a few feet from water up to 13,000 feet and the fliers did not sight a single ship.

"I didn't know once during the night whether I was upside down or not," said Capt. Alcock. "Once we awoke hurriedly when we saw the

PROFITEERS ARE COMING THIS WEEK

Milwaukee in Consternation Over Passage of Arnold Tax Bill

BOOSTS INCOME RATE

Senator Wilcox Says He Would Have Opposed the Measure

Big Business, including some of the men who wear the shiny buttons of the "war profiteers" will be in Madison in force this week to oppose the passage of the Arnold income tax bill. This measure would increase taxes about 25 per cent over the present rates.

The senate voted Monday morning to stage a second round in the fight on the Arnold income tax bill. On motion of Senator Bird the senate adopted a resolution to recall the bill from the assembly to which branch it was sent last week. Neither Senator Arnold, nor any other of the four socialist were present when the motion was adopted.

Senator Severson inquired as to the object of the motion, to which Bird replied that the senate might desire to give the bill further consideration.

While it is customary for either branch to accede to a request of the other on the return of a bill it is a matter of courtesy and the assembly would be within the rules, were it to refuse. The senate has once voted on a reconsideration. If the bill is sent back to the senate further action can be taken only by unanimous consent or a suspension of the rules, which requires a two-thirds vote. The assembly will not be in session until 10:30 Tuesday morning.

With the state facing a large general tax as the result of extensive highway improvements and the possibility of having a state tax to pay bounties for soldiers, there is a need for increased revenues and the friends of the measure think that these sums should no longer be saddled upon the general property of the state, but should be placed on "those best able to bear the burden."

Lobbyist in Consternation
Consternation reigned in the lobbyist circles when the Arnold bill passed the senate. They thought that inasmuch as they had defeated the bill repealing the "income tax offset" it would be easy to defeat any measure increasing income tax rates. They were caught napping and the bill went through the senate.

Immediately the wires from Madison to Milwaukee and to other centers of the state, where large profits have been made during the war years were burned up in an effort to call out the full battery of "big business and war profiteers" to defeat the measure.

Wilcox in Opposition
The senate is a smaller body and the bill could be more easily be disposed of there. With upwards of thirty-five farmers in the assembly who would naturally be in favor of such a measure, the tax lobbyists are in consternation.

"There is no justification for such radical changes in the income tax law as are made by the Arnold bill," said Senator Roy P. Wilcox, Friday night.

"Nothing in the way of legislative appropriations justifies such a radical increase in the rates of income taxation. I regret that I was absent from the senate on Thursday, when the bill was under consideration, having been detained in the northern part of the state on a business trip.

"Rates of state income taxation need some revision, as is pointed out in the report of the interim committee on reconstruction, but this should not be done until business has some relief through a reduction of the heavy federal taxes now being imposed.

"Wisconsin business can ill bear such a heavy handicap in its race with competitors in neighboring states."

The 1915 income tax revenue of the state was $3,837,370; in 1918 it was $11,830,142, and it is estimated the 1919 returns, with no increase in rate, will be between $15,000,000 and $18,000,000.

BIG NINE HERE SOCIALLY BLIND TO LABOR NEEDS

—CARL N. HILL

Principals Accepted by World Leaders Battled by Employers

"We have here in Madison the spectacle of a little group of nine employers with a limited vision of social justice attempting to stand up against principles endorsed and accepted by the leaders of the world," declared Carl N. Hill, Madison attorney in his talk before the mass meeting of laborers held at Monona beach yesterday afternoon.

"Labor is not a commodity to be bought and sold like milk and cheese," he continued, "and the employer who cannot see the dawn of a new era of social justice is in a sad way. He is twenty-five years behind times.

"You have been forced to strike in order to bring the employers of Madison to recognize the right of collective bargaining and yet that very thing is the bottom rock on which labor stands. It is an accepted principle of the inter-allied council.

He told of an eastern manufacturing plant whose policies were dictated by a body composed of representatives of the stockholders, managers, unions, public and state, all of whom, he said, were actually interested in the production of the goods of the concern.

"Does that plant have strikes?" he asked. "Certainly not and yet they pay higher wages than their competitors and are able to remain on the market with a good business."

Mr. Hill also reminded the workers of the importance of maintaining the support of public opinion, warning them against inflammatory speeches and all forms of lawlessness.

J. H. Brown, president of the Madison Federation of Labor, presided at the meeting and introduced the speakers. The second address was made by J. J. Hanley of Milwaukee, secretary of the State Federation of Labor.

Mr. Hanley gave some interesting figures concerning the strength of labor, taking an optimistic view of what organized labor would ultimately accomplish for the working man of America. The American Federation of Labor, now in its thirty-ninth year has 4,000,000 members, he said and the Wisconsin Federation of Labor has 70,000 members.

He pointed out how low wage, employers, by injecting religious quarrels, had successfully disrupted the Knights of Labor, a previous effort of workers to organize, calling attention to a similar effort by some employers to keep laborers separated today.

This, he explained, was being done by the introduction of welfare unions, an organization within the walls of a particular plant excluding outside affiliations.

"These employers are afraid of the strength of 4,000,000 members of the American Federation of Labor," he said.

"Along legislative lines, labor is asking for three particular things, protection against unemployment, sickness and old age and with present indications by the coming session of the legislature, we will have enough representatives to have these things.

"Assemblyman Nolan of Janesville has made the statement that he represents not a particular class, but all the people. Well you might ask the workmen of that city if they believe he represents them."

Insecurity of the workman's position, he characterized as a grave injustice, stating that the law should allow any man 60 to 90 days' notice of dismissal. He stated that as a beginner a law was now up for consideration, which would require a notice of 30 days or payment of a month's salary.

GERMANS TO GET TREATY AT 6 TODAY

Revised Draft Will be Given to Delegation at Versailles

TO REFUSE TO SIGN?

Terms Will be Taken to Weimar Where Assembly Is In Session

BULLETIN
VERSAILLES.—The allied reply to the German counter proposals was delivered by Paul Dutasta, General Secretary of the peace conference to Count Von Brockdorff-Rantzau, head of the German peace delegation at 6:45 o'clock this evening.

BULLETIN
(By the Associated Press)
PARIS.—The allies have promised Germany to deliver within one month a list of persons whom they intend to try for the responsibility for the war and violation of the laws of war.

(By the Associated Press)
The revised draft of the treaty with Germany will be presented to the German delegation at Versailles at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The council of four will give final consideration to the provisions of the treaty this morning. Premier Clemenceau planned to communicate the provisions to the French cabinet previously.

The treaty will not be presented in complete printed form as revised.

The corrections in the original document have been written in red ink upon one copy of the treaty and the Germans will be landed this and 99 other copies upon which they can duplicate the corrections for themselves. Immediately after receiving the document the head of the German mission, accompanied by colleagues, will leave for Weimar.

Assembled in Weimar are political leaders from all Germany, and it is probable that the German cabinet will submit the whole matter to them instead of taking upon itself the responsibility of recommending either acceptance or rejection of the terms.

A dispatch from Berlin Saturday said that the consensus of opinion in official quarters there seemed to be that the terms, unless modified in "spirit and letter" would be rejected by Germany. Rumors that there is pending a cabinet crisis and that Matthias Erzberger, chairman of the German armistice commission, at Spa, will lead a new government which will be called upon to decide upon peace at the allies' terms or a resumption of hostilities are discounted at the German capital.

Sections of the Austrian treaty which were reserved when the main portions of the pact were laid before the Austrian delegates at St. Germain, will be presented Tuesday. It is reported from Paris. During the remainder of the week, the peace conference will busy itself on Austrian and Turkish affairs.

CAVALRY PURSUES VILLA; INFANTRY BACK IN U.S. SINGLE AMERICAN FATALITY

BOOZE DEFENSE GIVES 4 WOMEN SEPARATIONS

Judge Hoppman Hears Same Story Over and Over Again

Divorce machinery in Superior court was running full speed this morning when four women were granted separations from their husbands. In every case liquor had played a trump card in breaking up the home ties. District Attorney Roman Heilmann set the record for recent terms of court, successfully representing three plaintiffs in one morning.

Amanda Kramer was granted a divorce from William Kramer after having been married to him nearly 30 years. There were three children, two of them grown and living in Madison. The other is deceased.

It was a case of liquor or me with Mrs. Kramer and he said he preferred the liquor. He got it.

The couple lived for years on a farm near Richland Center and both had a reputation of being hard workers. Starting with practically nothing, they had saved up property and money valuing some $13,000. Mrs. Kramer was allowed $4,200 of that amount with the divorce. She is now living in Madison with her daughter.

The husband, it appears, always somewhat of a drinker, had in the last few years steadily grown worse, taking little if any care of his family and finally deserting them.

Bernice M. Smith, of Windsor, had only lived with her husband, Walter H. Smith, 10 days following their marriage at Winona, but Mr. Smith's conduct during those 10 days was sufficient to convince the court that Mrs. Smith deserved a divorce. Being married, it is alleged that Mr. Smith immediately proceeded to get drunk and began to beat his wife and torture her with all sorts of inhuman treatments.

Martha Haugen of Stoughton was granted a divorce from Ole Haugen, who it is alleged, deserted her in 1916, and was given custody of the two boys.

This was another case in which the husband had steadily drunk more and more and finally deserted his family, leaving them entirely to their own support.

Elizabeth L. Adley, 133 North Butler street, was granted a divorce from Harry C. Adley, who it is alleged, suddenly packed up his clothes and deserted the family. This occurred more than 11 years ago. Mrs. Adley said that she had neither seen nor heard directly from her husband since he left home. Divorce Council Reynolds did not oppose any of the actions this morning.

Motorman and Conductor Held—Former Admits Theft of $2.73

A leak in the funds of the Madison Street Railway Co., which officials believe existed to some considerable extent, was uncovered last night with the arrest of Charles Thousand and P. O. Wieland, a conductor and a motorman who, it is alleged, unfastened the money boxes, shaking the change out through the top. Wieland pleaded guilty to the charge of taking $2.73 and Thousand pleaded not guilty. The case will be tried tomorrow afternoon. It is said the rattling of the money in the metal boxes was audible for some distance when they were being shaken to dislodge the money.

Return to El Paso—American Artilleryman Sniper's Victim in El Paso

BULLETIN
(By the Associated Press)
WASHINGTON.—There can be no misunderstanding between the governments of the United States and Mexico regarding the movement of troops across the border at El Paso, Secretary Baker said today. The sole purpose, he said, was protection of the American side of the border and there is a distinct understanding between the governments for such action.

(By the Associated Press)
EL PASO.—At 11 o'clock the entire 2nd cavalry brigade, composed of the 7th and 5th regiments, could be plainly seen about eight miles south and west of Juarez in hot pursuit of the Villa forces.

At 11:20 the American cavalry appeared to be gaining rapidly on the band which was making a desperate effort to reach the mountains to the southwest of Juarez. The columns could be seen in a cloud of dust to the southwest beyond Juarez.

JUAREZ.—United States infantry began withdrawing from Juarez to El Paso this morning in obedience to orders by Major Gen. Dorr Roscy C. Cabell, after a conference with Gen. Francisco Gonzales, supreme commander of the Juarez troops.

By 11 o'clock the entire 24th Inf. was back on American soil after having spent exactly eleven hours on Mexican soil.

EL PASO.—American troops sent into Mexico last night to stop the indiscriminate firing across the border, fought their first general engagement with the Mexican rebel forces of Francisco Villa, at the Juarez race track shortly after 2 o'clock this morning, and the Americans were victorious.

Route Is Complete
Villa's troops were driven from the race track by rifle and machine gun fire and many prisoners were reported taken by the United States cavalry which surrounded the track on the east and southeast, according to an official report at military headquarters.

Mexican rebels and federal troops fought in the streets of Juarez Saturday night and Sunday night, many on both sides being killed. Many bullets from the rebel guns came across the Rio Grande, and two persons were killed and seven wounded on the American side.

Colored Troops Lead
When the Mexican bullets became too thick for the safety of citizens of El Paso, Brig. Gen. J. B. Erwin at 11 o'clock ordered American troops to cross the border, and in ten minutes after the order was issued 3,600 U. S. soldiers were in Mexico. The first troops to cross the border were the 6th battalion of the 24th Inf. (colored), a battalion of the 82nd artillery, and the 5th and 7th cavalry.

After the federals were allowed to retire into the town, Col. Hadsell's colored infantry opened up with a terrific rifle fire on the trenches flanking the race track. They advanced in open order and

LIFE IS SOMETHING MORE THAN MONEY.

Ralph E. Dennis, a professor and Y. M. C. A. leader, has returned from Russia. He says the United States must aid Russia and then in the next breath shows that the U. S. A., with its big business leadership, can't solve its own problems.

In a pamphlet, issued by the Union League club, Prof. Dennis writes of Russia and the U. S. A., as follows:

There is one interesting thing in Russia about which I want to tell you. I found a lot of men there who had lived in America. I found them in positions of authority, and I found them the most bitter and in their hatred of the capitalistic system and class.

Why! To answer that correctly is worth your while and mine.

Want Something Beside Money?

"On the platform one dark night at Rostov-on-the-Don I asked my way of four soldiers and found that three of them had lived in the United States. When we left, my companion said, 'Boys, you'd better come back to America; there's more money over there.'"

And one of them replied in broken English, "We want something beside money; we want a good life; maybe we find it over here."

What! Those fellows went back from here! To Russia, to find a "good life."

There must be something wrong with them. But let's see. I am willing to believe that that boy, and he typifies thousands, came to America with a dream in his heart, undefined perhaps, but there. A dream that he expected to find fulfilled in "free America."

And what of the soldier boys and the great industrial army which stayed behind? Pre-war conditions, pre-war attitude of nobody-gives-a-damn, pre-war antagonism between capital and labor? If so, look out for Bolshevism.

I know that there are men, I've talked with them, employers, who stick out their lower jaw and rip off a cuss word and say, "We'll show 'em." And they talk about a standing army and machine guns!

And I have a feeling that at this time in this world the man who talks that way has no more right to be running around loose than a maniac with a meat axe.

These are great days. Much is in the balance, perhaps even the civilization of Europe. Is there any body here who dares predict what will happen?

There is a new goal before us now, a new job to be done. We must bridge the gap between capital and labor, must do it by democracy, by getting together as man to man, by more "humaneness." And if we put one-half of the brains, one-half of the unity, one-thousandth part of the money on this job that we put on kicking the kaiser, the job is done.

RESOLUTION ON JEWS ADOPTED

Huber Measure Passed in the Senate; Quotes Hughes and Fallows

In the form of a substitute, Senator Huber's resolution memorializing the president and congress to take steps to halt Jewish massacres in Europe, was adopted in the senate today after Senator Huber had warmly defended its objects and his own motives in bringing this into the legislature. This resolution in its original form once passed the senate, but was later recalled from the assembly on motion of Senator Foss, who alleged that it was aimed at the Polish people and that it represented German propaganda.

This charge Senator Huber vehemently denied, quoting Charles E. Hughes and Bishop Fallows to show the timelessness of the resolution.

"As I stated before when this resolution was before the senate for consideration, I introduced it at the request of some Jews of the city of Madison," said Senator Huber. "There is neither German propaganda nor Russian Bolshevik interests."

Here Senator Huber read the New York speech by Mr. Hughes at a recent mass meeting. He then continued:

"I might go on and quote what Bishop Fallows has to say on this subject, but I have already trespassed too long on the time of the senate. But let me say in conclusion surely no one will accuse Judge Hughes of spreading German propaganda; surely no one will charge that saintly old gentleman, Bishop Fallows, with spreading Bolshevik ideas."

Gardenridge Property in East End Scene of Real Estate Activity

Business is looking up in Madison. The newest development is the announcement of a sale to be conducted this week of 20 new houses in the east end by the Madison Realty company. This company has had under construction for the past six months 20 houses designed to give attractive, modern houses to people of moderate means. The plot has been named Gardenridge is located on the ridge overlooking Lake Monona, just east of Elmside. This development is unique as it is the first attempt in Madison at once to design and build an entire community of houses. Haphazard building of houses gives at best a checker-board appearance to any community. In this new plot all the houses and grounds were designed before construction began, so as to give harmony in architectural design, coloring, planting, etc. The result is very attractive and is a distinct advance in real estate development in Madison. Prof. L. S. Smith, city planning; Prof. F. A. Aust, landscape designer, and P. H. Homer, architect, are the professional men who have had the designing in charge.

Selling houses on the monthly installment plan to people who cannot pay cash, has become very general, but in this sale a new and interesting feature is added. The Realty company agrees to give a deed of the house clear of all incumbrance to the wife or children if the father dies within two years of purchase, and for a nominal additional charge offers to continue this guarantee until the house is finally paid for.

More and more the housing situation in Madison is demanding the attention of business men. Unless more houses are provided soon, the city will be confronted with a serious problem when the largely increased attendance at the university means increased rents, and to be known as a high rent city will be far from a drawing card to outsiders. Reports come that Milwaukee is in the midst of a building boom. Madison needs to wake up to the situation. High cost of building or not, we must have homes for the people who are here, and the people who want to come here to live.

The opening of this new plot of homes—apt. lots—is encouraging.

A NEW ESPIONAGE LAW—I

DURING the past two years the American people have tolerated laws restricting the freedom of speech and of the press under pressure of the statement that such curtailment of civil liberties was necessary to the conduct of the war. The winning of the war was THE big thing and the American people were willing to make any sacrifice to attain that end.

During this period American liberals have been sounding a warning that freedom of speech and the press were being taken away permanently and that only a determined fight on the part of the common people would bring about a restoration of these rights.

The people, however, have viewed these warnings of liberals with somewhat of a spirit of indifference. With the coming of peace, they argued, no party or administration would DARE to place on the statutes repressive measures designed to suppress free speech and a free press. These conditions, they contended, could only be sustained during a period of war.

Now, however, we are face to face with the conditions predicted by the liberals and the complacent attitude taken by thousands is face to face with a new espionage law for times of peace even more drastic than the one in force during the time of war.

On this page today we are printing the text of the new espionage act which it is proposed to jam through at this session of Congress.

There is one big outstanding issue in the world today. It is the struggle that is going on between capitalism on one side and the common people on the other. This is the struggle between those who are exploiting the people and the people who are being exploited. This economic exploitation has now reached a point of oppression where people in all parts of the world are rebelling—they are rebelling against a system of society which is making the rich richer and the poor poorer.

Bolshevism, industrial strife, national discontent, the commune, general strikes, are but symptoms and results of this world conflict. They are but effects. The basic cause is the world wide economic oppression.

Because of this rebellion all over the world, capitalism has been placed on the defensive. It is fighting for its life. It is desperate. And so we have men like Frank Vanderlip and H. P. Davison and Thomas Lamont hastening back from Europe in a panic to tell us that civilization is in the balance.

Something must be done to stave off "anarchy" and "chaos" and Bolshevism, they declare.

But as usual, capitalism is again doing everything but the right thing to stave off the disaster they so much fear. Organized wealth never seems to understand mass psychology. With the wisdom of the bull in a china shop they are seeking to stave off the onslaught with the instruments that history so graphically shows have never yet stopped mass determination.

Capitalism knows that it is sick. It knows that it is suffering from a cancer that is eating into its vitals. And hoping against hope it is trying to cure itself of the cancer with the use of salve, the salve of standing armies, conscription, repressive laws, the subsidized press and misrepresentation. Capitalism bull-headedly refuses to accept the diagnosis of those who see clearly the REAL causes of its sickness and it still refuses to surrender or let up to any extent in its greed for profits and refuses to become less determined in its economic oppression.

The fight is on in this country. Capitalism in New York and Washington is no different than it is in London and Paris and Berlin and Tokio and Rome. Capitalism is international. It knows no boundaries, it has no flag, it knows no creed but the almighty dollar.

And so in America we have our industrial disorders the same as they are having in Italy and England and France and Japan—and for the same reason. We have the same national discontent here, that prevails in other countries,—and for the same reason.

And that reason is: There is a limit to the extent that people can be exploited and that limit has about been reached.

And capitalism is making the same fight in this country that it is making in other countries for its existence. It is fighting for conscription and compulsory military training and for standing armies that can be used to keep down discontent and industrial disorders. It is fighting for repressive and espionage laws that it thinks will scare people into silence and put iron bars before as a reward for expressing discontent. It is ordering its prostitute editors to keep on yelling "Pro-Germanism" and "alien agitation" and "Bolshevism" in an effort to divert the minds of the people and get their thoughts off from the REAL issue by appeals to their passions and prejudices.

These are the reasons why it is now proposed to have an espionage law for times of peace.

The country, of course, will be told that this legislation will be necessary to keep down pro-Germanism, alien agitation and the overthrow of the government. The people will be fed up on propaganda for the bill by capitalistic editors who don't dare to say anything about the REAL REASONS for our national ills.

Tomorrow we shall discuss this proposed law. We shall have something to say about the influences in this country that are seeking to pass this law and what they expect to accomplish by its passage.

Proposed New Espionage Bill

The new espionage bill, as it will be introduced by Senator King, reads:

"An act to protect the government of the United States of America, its national emblem, its securities and obligations, and its military and naval forces.

"Section 1. Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled: That any person who shall wilfully utter, print, write, or publish any disloyal, profane, scurrilous, or abusive language about the form of government of the United States, the Constitution of the United States, or the flag of the United States, or any language intended to bring the form of government of the United States, the Constitution of the United States, or the flag of the United States, or the uniform of the navy or army of the United States into contempt, scorn, contumely, or disrepute, or shall wilfully speak, utter, print, write, or publish any language intended to incite, provoke, or encourage resistance to the United States, or a defiance and disregard of the Constitution or laws of the United States, or shall advocate any change, alteration, or modification in the form of the Government of the United States, except in the manner provided for by the terms of the Constitution of the United States, or shall advocate any change in the form of government of the United States by means of revolution or violence, or shall advocate the assassination of persons occupying public positions or offices created by the Constitution and laws of the United States, or shall advocate, incite, provoke, or encourage the destruction, burning, blowing up, or damaging of any public or private property as a part or incident of a program of force, violence, or revolution having for its purpose the overthrow of the form of government of the United States, or shall wilfully display publicly any flag or emblem, except the flag of the United States, as symbolic or emblematic of the Government of the United States or of a form of government proposed by its adherents or supporters as superior or preferable to the form of government of the United States as prescribed by the Constitution of the United States, shall be guilty of a felony, and, upon conviction, be punished by a fine of not more than $10,000 and imprisonment not exceeding ten years, and an alien convicted under this section shall, in addition to the penalty hereinbefore provided for, be ordered deported to the country from whence he came.

"Section 2. That any person who shall import or attempt to import into the United States from any foreign country, or shall ship, transport, or attempt to ship or transport, in interstate or foreign commerce any written or printed matter intended to incite, provoke, or encourage resistance to the United States or a defiance or disregard of the Constitution or laws of the United States, or advocating any change, alteration, or modification in the form of Government of the United States, except in the manner provided for by the terms of the Constitution of the United States, or advocating any change in form of Government of the United States by means of revolution or violence, or advocating the assassination of persons occupying offices or positions of trust under the United States, shall be guilty of a felony and, upon conviction, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $10,000 and imprisonment not exceeding ten years, and any alien convicted under this section shall, in addition to the penalty hereinbefore provided for, be ordered deported to the country from whence he came.

"Section 3. That any person who shall wilfully cause or attempt to cause or incite insubordination, disloyalty, mutiny, or refusal of duty in the military or naval forces of the United States, or by or on the part of any person liable to actual military or naval service with the colors in the military or naval forces of the United States, or shall wilfully obstruct or attempt to obstruct the recruiting or enlistment service of the United States, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $5,000 and imprisonment not to exceed five years, and any alien convicted of a violation of this section shall, in addition to the penalty hereinbefore provided, be deported to the country from whence he came.

"Section 4. Any person, firm or corporation who shall wilfully make, or convey false reports or false statements or shall say or do anything, except by way of bona fide advice to an investor or investors, with intent to obstruct the sale by the United States of bonds or other securities of the United States, or the making of loans to or by the United States, or to depress, discredit, or adversely affect the value of any outstanding bonds, obligations, or securities issued by the United States, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $5,000, and imprisonment not to exceed three years; and any alien convicted of a violation of this section shall, in addition to the penalty hereinbefore provided, be deported to the country from whence he came.

"Section 5. If two or more persons conspire to violate any of the provisions of sections 1, 2, 3 or 4 of this act, and one or more of such persons does any act to effect the object of the conspiracy, each of the parties to such conspiracy shall be punished as in said sections provided in the case of the doing of the act the accomplishment of which is the object of such conspiracy.

"Section 6. That any alien who is convicted of any felony shall, in addition to the other penalties provided for by the act, for a violation of which such alien was convicted, be deported to the country from whence he came in the manner now provided for the deportation of aliens found in the country in violation of the immigration laws, and upon the conviction of any such alien it shall be the duty of the United States attorney in the district in which said conviction is had, or the prosecuting attorney of the state jurisdiction, where such conviction is had in a state court, to furnish to the secretary of labor a duly authenticated copy of the sentence of the court, and the secretary of labor shall thereupon issue his warrant of deportation, and shall cause the same to be duly executed upon the release of said alien from custody under the sentence of the court.

"Section 7. That it shall be the duty of the district court of the United States within whose territorial jurisdiction a naturalized citizen has been convicted of a violation of this act, or of any crime involving moral turpitude, to cancel the naturalization papers of such person upon bill of equity filed for that purpose in the same manner as is now provided for the cancellation of naturalization papers on grounds of fraud, and upon the completion of such cancellation the secretary of labor shall cause such alien to be deported to the country from whence he came in the manner provided for by section 6 of this act.

"Section 8. That all acts and parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed."

AT THE THEATERS

THE GRAND.
"Tangled Threads" featuring Bessie Barriscale, and little Ben Alexander is the attraction at the Grand today. The creation of the character of Mrs. Wayne by Miss Barriscale, is one of the best examples of the dramatic art that the screen has presented for some time. The role embodies the highest type of womanhood. The character of Mrs. Wayne wins the sympathy of the spectator in the opening scenes and holds it to the close of the picture. Ben Alexander is, as always, the genuine little boy, imparting to the role of "Sonny-Boy" the delightful characteristics of happy childhood.

MAJESTIC.
Theda Bara is seen in an unusual environment in the new William Fox super-production, "The Siren's Song," which opened at the Majestic yesterday and which will be shown there for the last times today. The scenes are laid in a fishing village in Brittany. Miss Bara appears in the quaint peasant costume of that French province and the sea is always splashing in the background.

ORPHEUM.
Agnes Berri and Irene Jonani from the Chicago and Boston Grand opera companies, at the Orpheum this week, are a pair quite unusual to the vaudeville stage. Both have excellent voices and both use them to a remarkable advantage. Their program, not confined to grand opera, is made up of an interesting variety of songs, some of them old and familiar, which would win its way into the heart of any audience. Ralph Mason Hix at the piano aids considerably, being a splendid accompanist.

The Melvins, three of them so styled the world's most sensational gymnasts, are artists at their specialty. Possibly a certain sameness to the act but, a headlong dive across the stage from a board some ten feet high to land, hands only clasping the hands of another who has his back to you and finally to be raised to extended arm's length over the head of the one doing the catching, all without further assistance than sheer strength in the arms, is some trick and the Melvins do it.

"Well, good by. I may nebbber see you all again an' that'll be soon enough," remarks a fat nigger with a derby.

"Ye an' I don't spose I'll look myself blind trying to find you either," answers a gangling nigger with a Louisiana cotton picker's stride.

It's Lions and West in the usual controversy of gentlemen of that color and there is a bunch of good laughs.

Bob White used to whistle to the boys in the trenches while they were waiting for orders to go over the top. He must have got a lot of practice because he has a good bunch of "ditties," imitations of a mocking bird up.

C. W. Nelson in his Mystic garden has some method of getting a girl out of somewhere and getting her inside of a glass lined trunk sitting high and free on a rooler stand, which to say the least is confusing. Some of his other mystic stunts also furnish food for considerable wonderment.

THE NEW STRAND.
Knowing that an American girl was being held for ransom by some Mexican bandits, and having evidence that led him to believe that the girl was his fiancée, who had broken their engagement because she believed him a coward and a traitor to his country, young Robert Carr of Virginia crossed the border and wandered through Mexico pretending to be a deaf-mute. Many efforts were made to trick him. To tell whether he succeeded in rescuing the girl who, by the way, is Millicent Fisher, a very lovely new leading lady, would be spoiling the thrilling climax of "Fighting Through," shown at the New Strand for the last times today.

AT THE FULLER.
Love in a Japanese garden, amid the most beautiful surroundings imaginable, is depicted in the new World picture, "The Unwritten Code," which is scheduled for showing today at the Fuller with Shirley Mason, the famous film and stage favorite, as the star and with Matt Moore playing the role of the leading man. The Nestor comedy, "Lizzy's Waterloo" is offered on this program. A really worth-while photoplay is "The Haunted Bedroom," starring dainty Enid Bennett, which will be on view at the Fuller Tuesday and Wednesday.

Largest Flying Field Closed by Government

WASHINGTON—Bolling Field, the largest air service flying field in the vicinity of Washington has been closed by the war department, it was learned today.

Voice of the People

REPLIES TO WHEELER.

To Mr. M. P. Wheeler:—
I have been reading your letters in the Voice of the People in The Capital Times.

I have hesitated about answering you as I have such a poor education. But after reading your last letter I decided to write.

Of all the foolish things you have written, it surely was the worst and plainly shows how much you know about the machinists' strike or any other strike or labor matter.

Why is it, Mr. Wheeler, that you don't like to see labor get a square deal? Why shouldn't the man who works have a lot of life's good things, for instance, education for his children and time to get acquainted with his family?

When my husband worked ten hours per day, he came home after six and by the time we had supper it was nearly eight. You know washing off grease which has been accumulating for ten hours takes time. Now, why shouldn't he have a little daylight as well as anyone else?

If you have such a craze for writing letters in the People's Voice why don't you write about something you know?

You seem to expect the strikers to be perfect. You think it's terrible that they should want their share of the profits. The other fellow has been getting his long enough—now we want ours.

There are lots of good causes in which you could interest yourself instead of harping about the unions all the time. Of course, it really doesn't make any difference as far as labor is concerned no matter how much you knock. Thinking people will read your letters a couple of times and decide that they are not worth reading. Just so much trash.

So you liken us to the Prussians and think that our policy is "meanness and Gott." That's where you make another fool mistake. I'm sure you're old enough to know better. I guess you would like to see labor in the rut for another hundred years, wouldn't you? I bet if you worked in a shop you would be scabbing it.

Well, here's hoping you "come too" before long. Perhaps in time you will understand that organization is the only means of getting anywhere for the working men. Maybe you had a hunch that the employers were such kind hearted people that such things as union were unnecessary.

A STRIKER'S WIFE.

THE DAYLIGHT SAVING LAW

Editor, National Equity News, Madison, Wis.

Dear Sir:

Information comes from Washington that the Daylight Saving Law, or a better word "Daylight Wasting Law," failed to be repealed. This is a serious blow in my judgment for the farmers. There is not a farmer in all the land who would not vote against it if he had an opportunity. It may be entirely satisfactory to city workers who work sometimes 8 hours a day once a day, but it hits mighty hard the farmer who has to work 8 hours a day twice a day. The farmer must work while the sun is on the job. The sun does not always help him and once in a while goes on a strike for a whole week. Then when the sun does shine the farmer must put in sometimes more than double time to keep up his end of the game.

The farmer must use all the daylight God gives him and often an additional hour or two that he makes up for himself. He rises at daylight, brings in the horses, feeds, curries and harnesses them, milks the cows, feeds the pigs and somewhere during this forenoon's exercise the call for breakfast greets him. When this necessary function is hurriedly finished, at perhaps 6:00 or 6:30 o'clock, he answers some telephone calls, waits on a neighbor who comes to borrow some tool or to talk about the mortgage, and after taking the cows to pasture he gets into the field by somewhere between 7:30 and 9:30.

At 12:00 o'clock, by the Daylight Saving Plan, he has been from 2½ to 4½ hours in the field by 1:00 o'clock and in 5 hours the new time shows 6:00 p. m., when it is really only 5:00. Of course this gives the banker and city people an extra hour of recreation but the farmer knows where he and his crops will land if he stops work in the middle of the afternoon. Keep in mind that the farmer must hustle while the sun helps him and when he goes by the new time he puts in nearly 7 hours in his field in the afternoon. He possibly might endure this unevenly divided day but it is a cruelty to his team and every good farmer considers the comforts of his horses even as much as he does his own. But the story does not end here. He takes the horses to the barn, feeds them, but he can't stop now to eat his supper. He has to feed the pigs, milk the cows and have the milk strained before it gets dark, so he has a 9:00 to 9:30 past time supper. It is then time for bed. The wife, however, must yet do the dishes, so when she is finally ready to retire it is 10:00 o'clock. But bear in mind that she and the rest of the household must rise with the sun no matter how the clock is regulated. Someone will say these long hours are not necessary on the farm. He who thinks long hours are not necessary on the farm under present conditions simply does not know. His farm knowledge is made up from a city farmer's dreams. I want to say that such long hours should not be necessary but they are until a new day dawns for the farmer. A new day when so many other men are not living by the sweat of the farmer's brow. That new day will never dawn for the farmer until he gets sense enough to make that day dawn. The farmer can do this if he will and in less than ten years. All these years he has let the other fellow run his affairs and fix his prices and we all know the result. If organized business or organized labor had not wanted that law, or had wanted it repealed, they would simply advise Congress where to head in "before the votes were counted." Organized business and organized labor have representatives and spokesmen and these two organizations do not care one cent about the political color of a candidate. All that they care for is how he will vote on certain questions. When that question is answered, they know how the program is to be pulled off on election day. Farmers must study politics. What is the farmer's vote? They smear on a little soft soap about the Grand Old Party and how we never voted any way but straight. That is the only argument it takes to land the farmer's vote.

The time is at hand when the farmer, through organized effort, must know more politics, not partisan politics but more of the affairs of his Government. He must learn it through his organization, find out what he wants and how to get it. He must get his forces in action and secure some one to speak for him as Samuel Gompers speaks to and for his labor union. He finds out what it wants. The farmer must tear himself away, if need be, from the party label in which he was born and ask his representatives to give it to him before the votes are counted. These representatives will give him what he wants if what he wants is what he needs and what he ought to have. When that happens food will be cheaper for the reason that it will be produced more cheaply. Why don't some of the investigators point out and tell us why this high cost of marketing and suggest a remedy. This big expense in marketing makes a fine living for folks that the producers and consumers pay dearly for. Most of us know and realize these many wrongs and so far we have failed to find a remedy. It might be worth a great big row if enough daylight could be saved and turned on to this system and show us how to lop off the many expenses that are absolutely useless in the value of products. This daylight saving farce is simply another toll exacted of the farmer to make him work harder and longer hours. The time has come when the farmer must assert his manhood and, backed by common sense, reason, and justice, stand for or against things which vitally affect him.

In closing let me say that the record of the Congressmen and Senators who voted against the repeal of this law should be in the hands of every farmer in the United States, and if the Republican party which is in control does not work for the repeal of not only this law but the Espionage Law, the Deportation Act, the Man Power Bill and other laws which have been enacted under war pressure, there will, in my judgment, be a new alignment in the next campaign.

JOHN B. MILLER GAINS 27 POUNDS ON FOUR BOTTLES

Milwaukee Man Feels He Owes Debt of Gratitude for What Tanlac Has Done For Him

"I believe in giving everything its due and I just want to say right now that I can't praise Tanlac too highly for what it has done for me," said John B. Miller, of 856 Sixth avenue, Milwaukee, in a conversation, recently, while relating his experience with Tanlac. Mr. Miller also made the remarkable statement that he has actually picked up twenty-seven pounds in weight on four bottles of the medicine. Mr. Miller was born and reared in Dane, Wisconsin, but has lived in Milwaukee for the past two years and is employed as a machinist helper by the Atlas Chainers Company.

"For that past year or two," he continued, "I have suffered with one of the worst cases of stomach trouble. It seems to me, a man could have a food would invariably sour, bloated me all up with gas, and cause such an awful pain in the pit of my stomach that I could hardly stand it. I was constantly belching up this sour gas and there were some things I could taste for a day or so after eating them. My breakfast nearly always caused me so much trouble that by noon I felt so weak and sick I didn't want to eat and I could hardly do my work. I never slept well, always got up in the morning feeling tired and miserable, and when the day was over I was so exhausted that I would just come dragging in home. I simply can't describe how run-down and so account I did feel."

"I had dropped down twenty pounds in weight and at the time I got Tanlac it was still losing. But soon after I began taking this medicine I commenced to gain ground and now I have not only gotten back the twenty pounds I had lost, but have actually gained seven pounds besides, making a gain of twenty-seven pounds on four bottles. My stomach now feels as good as new and while I used to have a mean nagging headache often I never have one now at all. I sleep the every night, get up in the mornings and eat a rousing breakfast and feel like a new man. I feel that I owe a big debt of gratitude to Tanlac for what it has done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Madison by A. B. Luckey & Son, in Deerfield by W. A. Perkins, in Middleton by Dr. A. M. Teckman and in Sun Prairie by W. S. Schultz.

green Atlantic only thirty feet below.

The breaking away of the propeller, generating current for the wireless apparatus soon after the start prevented the men from communicating with the shore. When it happened, Lieut. Brown noticed that the propeller had carried away with it one of the stay wires, but he did not tell Capt. Alcock until after they had landed at Gliden. When Alcock learned of the incident he said:

"I would have turned back had I known."

Weather Conditions Bad
Weather conditions were bad during the trip and Lieut. Brown had to climb from his seat to clear the ice away from the petrol gauge. After breakfast today Lieut. Brown went to bed, while Capt. Alcock inspected the machine. The lieutenant, however, was unable to sleep and soon got up. By noon both were looking perfectly well and willingly distributed autographs to admirers. Capt. Alcock wanted to fly to England in a borrowed plane, but his companion observed: "I have had enough flying for a bit."

Capt. Alcock exhibited a bunch of rain-soaked letters which he had been asked to mail if the flight was successful, saying, "I am the first trans-Atlantic postman."

The two aviators said they were only once in real danger, when the machine went into a flat spin, owing to the pilot being unable to tell how the machine was moving. Lieut. Brown, noticing that the compass needle was swinging from side to side—the first indication that something was wrong—managed to get Capt. Alcock to understand the difficulty. The machine travelled at a rate of 140 miles an hour at times and the pilot once found himself diving straight toward the surface of the ocean. He was so near the water that he had to "snatch" the machine from its dive so quickly that it almost looped the loop. He says the machine would have tumbled up had it touched the water, at the speed it was then traveling. The biplane is being guarded by soldiers and it is probable it will be necessary to dismantle it.

succeeded in dislodging the Villa forces who held the strongest positions at the colored troops were forced to advance across a comparatively open plain. The first volleys from the rifle men were answered, shot for shot, by the Villa troops who seemed to realize they had been trapped by the cavalry in the rear and the infantry in front.

American machine guns started sputtering from adobe houses near the race track and the superiority of rifle fire was soon with the American forces. The preliminary artillery having been completed the shrapnel guns became silent as the rifles took up the refrain. The explosion of mauser and American cartridges could be plainly distinguished from military headquarters in the Mills building in El Paso, where Gen. Erwin was an interested spectator from its tenth story window.

Cavalry Pursues Rebels
As the American cavalry maneuvered over the Juarez plain their positions were marked by green rocket flares and were answered by similar star shells from the top of Mills building. At 2:30 the rifle range had died down, indicating the Villa forces were defeated and were being driven into the hills or pursued by the U. S. cavalry.

The American artillery were stationed in positions from which the Juarez race track, where the Villa

DAILY HEALTH TALK

A Single Remedy Often Cures
Many Diseases

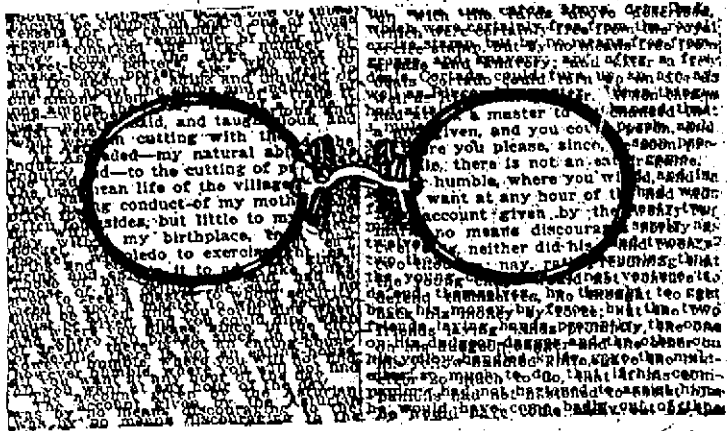

BY VALENTINE MOTT, M. D.

It is almost impossible to give a list of the endless diseases that follow indigestion. Perhaps a whole column in this newspaper would be required to print them all. Yet eat to keep alive—to supply blood and flesh and bone and muscle and brain. It is easy to see that if your food is not digested and taken up by the delicate organs and distributed where it is needed, a disease of some sort is sure to come. Dyspepsia is a common symptom, and so are liver complaint, less flesh, nervousness, bad memory, dizziness, sleeplessness, no appetite. Many times, when neglected, indigestion results in such lung diseases, catarrh, bronchitis and even more dangerous ones. And all these disorders arise because the food is not properly digested in the stomach. It is plain even to a child that relief and cure are to be had only by setting up a healthy condition in the stomach. Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., many years ago combined a number of vegetable growths into a temperance remedy for indigestion, and called it Golden Medical Discovery. It is probably the most efficacious discovery ever made in medicine, for the list of people all over the world who have had their countless ills overcome by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes an amazing list of thousands.

I know of no advice better than this: Begin a home treatment today with this good vegetable medicine. It will show you better than I can tell you what it will do. When taking Golden Medical Discovery, you can rest assured of one very important thing—it contains neither alcohol nor opiates. There is nothing in it but standard roots and herbs that possess curative properties of a high order. A safe medicine is the only kind you can afford to take.

P. O. HELP IN ANNUAL ICE CREAM

This might be a hard luck story, but it isn't.

Picture the postoffice employees on a sweltering hot afternoon tugging huge sacks of mail while the sweat ran over their foreheads into their eyes, the carriers returning after long trips over blistering pavements, and then picture a big five-gallon freezer of ice cream rolling up just at 3:30 in the afternoon when things are hottest. Then as the finishing touch, picture them as they ate the cream.

Mansfield-Cauchey Co. made their annual gift to postoffice employees. "We not only appreciate the ice cream," said Postmaster Devine this morning, "but to think that right on the hottest day you can imagine when they are busiest, they take time to remember us with such an appropriate gift."

Railroad Commission Work Complimented

Robert D. Armstrong, a graduate of the university, now secretary of the Indiana Public Service commission, who has been spending several days in Madison investigating the methods of the Wisconsin Railroad commission, paid a tribute to the Wisconsin system after examining the records in the pending cases when he stated that the Indiana Public Service commission has 634 undecided cases pending, or more than six times as many as the Wisconsin commission, and the Indiana commission employs a larger force of experts, assistants and clerks than the Wisconsin system.

Hotelman Gun Victim in Trouble Over Girl

(By the Associated Press)
ST. PAUL—J. L. Rogers, Minneapolis hotel proprietor, was shot and dangerously wounded in the business section of St. Paul early this morning. Later two young men were taken into custody and three men and one woman were identified as witnesses.

Rogers said that an argument in a cafe over a woman caused the trouble. Policemen were attracted by the shots and a running fight with the gunmen followed.

Rogers recently was arrested on charges of violating anti-vice laws in his hotel.

BRITISH BOOST TO POPULARIZE WORLD LEAGUE

Campaign Launched With Monster Mass Meeting at London

LONDON—A campaign to popularize the League of Nations, was launched tonight by the British League of Nations union at Albert Hall which was packed with a crowd of more than 7,000 persons. Viscount Grey, president and the principal address was made by Lord Robert Cecil, the other speakers being John Robert Clynes, former food controller; Dr. Alexander Irving, Archbishop of Canterbury and Dr. John Clifford, John W. Davis, American ambassador and Vice Admiral David Beatty attended.

Backing Means Success
All the speakers dwelt on the necessity for united and zealous popular support to make the league a reality and a success. Lord Robert Cecil twice referred to President Wilson, being vigorously applauded.

The enthusiasm of the audience for the league was in evidence throughout. Lord Robert's speech, but here and there were a few hecklers who tried to interrupt him. Several men in the gallery unfurled a red flag inscribed "Warships are fighting a socialist republic," evidently referring to the fighting between British and Russian warships in the Baltic.

When Lord Robert was naming the framers of the league covenant, a man shouted:

"What about Ireland?"
Lord Robert quickly retorted: "Ireland was ably represented. If I may say so by Gen. Smuts and myself."

Cheer Ejection
The audience cheered the speaker's arguments for admitting Germany to the league but the applause was punctuated by cries of "Protest, one man shouting:

"You bloody traitor."
Many others shouted:

"Put him out" and cheered loudly when the man was ejected.
"We fought for an ideal during the war," Viscount Grey said. "Can we fight for an ideal after the war? Great Britain has been great in war; she must be great in peace. Refuse to listen to those who regard the league as an impracticable ideal. It is a choice between life and death to the world. Any future war will be vastly more terrible than the last, owing to inventions and the progress of science. Hence there is need that we work for an ideal, namely, world peace."

Lord Robert said that no one would claim the covenant of the league of nations was perfect.

League Can Develop
But it is a living organism," he continued, "which will grow and adapt itself to requirements. There is a charge that the league is an organization which favors the British empire, but such critics have forgotten that virtually no important decision is possible without the consent of the council, in which there is no probability whatever that the British Empire will ever have more than one vote.

"If the league is to be a reality Germany and Russia must be included, because if these powerful nations are excluded they will be driven into intrigue against the league. Moreover, the league must be a league of nations; not of governments."

British Whole Hearted
Lord Robert argued that British advocacy of the league was not selfish. "She perhaps, has less need of the league than any other nation," he said. "Her European position is relatively stronger than ever in her history. Her fleet is unbeaten and more powerful than ever before the war. Her army is larger and better trained than ever and even on the economic side she is in better position than those who before the war were described as her rivals."

"In regard to Germany's admission to the league, reasonable guarantees of the sincerity of German professions are necessary and a certain novitiate is needed, but the shorter that novitiate can be safely made, the better. I see no reason why it should be more than a few months."

LEAF SUCKING INSECT THREATENS SPUD CROP

The potato crop of Wisconsin, and of the whole upper Mississippi Valley may again be threatened by the Potato Leaf-hopper, the tiny insect which destroyed so large a portion of the early crop of 1918.

The leafhopper differs from the potato beetle in that it feeds by sucking instead of eating. It cannot be poisoned as the beetle can but must be killed by contact sprays such as tobacco solutions or kerosene emulsion. The young nymphs feed entirely on the under side of the leaves. It is necessary, therefore, in spraying to reach the under side of the leaves.

For hand outfits the easiest method is to secure a piece of one-half inch gas pipe long enough to reach from the hand to the ground, crook it at the bottom so that the discharge from it will be upward to the underside of the plant leaves.

The State Department of Agriculture advises that the first spraying should be done as soon as the first evidence of leaf-burn appears on the plants. A second spraying a week later applied from the other side of the plant will ordinarily be sufficient. Tobacco solution, sold as nicotine sulphate, or "Black Leaf 40", should be used at the rate of one part to 800 parts of water to which 5 parts of soap should be added. If beetles are troublesome, some poison to reach them can be added to the solution.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox on Gain: Word Received by Brother

Marcus P. Wheeler, brother of Ella Wheeler Wilcox, has received a letter from Mrs. Wilcox's traveling companion concerning the serious illness of the former university woman and poetess dear to all American hearts. It is dated May 18, from Bath, England, and is as follows:

Bath England, May 18.—My dear Mr. Wheeler:—I think the last letter I wrote you we were intending to sail on the Lapland, but since then Ella has been failing steadily and we have had to cancel our reservations; and there seems no likelihood of our getting to America for a good while. A few days ago she was so very low there seemed no chance at all, and the doctors all said the only thing was to keep her comfortable as possible and free from pain. She did not know anyone and her mind wandered continually.

She has suddenly, however, taken a turn for the better and today is really quite like herself, the mind clear, and she talks quite rationally and knows us. I am not prepared to say anything permanent, but it is certainly a distinct gain. She is still a very ill woman and I am almost afraid it is her last sickness, although she talks continually of what she will do soon at the Bungalow and of how she will improve as soon as she gets home among her own friends and among her own cherished household things. I am sorry to have to give you this unfortunate news. Of course we all knew she was very sick but it never occurred to me that it could terminate fatally. We looked for years yet of activity and usefulness for her. I shall keep you informed, of course.

I have given up the rooms in London and shall stay here with her. I have a room close to the hospital at 8 Bath street.

Yours very truly,
M. L. Randall.

Mr. F. J. McWilliams,
204 State St.,
Madison, Wis.

Dear Sir:—

Just advised that Marie Alexander, for whom search is being made in your town, escaped from those seeking her in Milwaukee after she had been discovered working as chambermaid in one of the hotels here. Presumed she is headed towards Madison. It is known she had only enough funds to pay transportation to Madison. She probably will wear a maid's livery beneath a long blue cloak. Large sums offered to learn here whereabouts and to insure her against discomfort.

It is also reported that blackmailers are in pursuit of her. Suspect that she is more than a hotel maid from fuss that has been started to find her. Two men and a woman, all distinguished looking, are bounding the local authorities here until they are almost frantic, threatening their removal from office if she is not located at once. I enclose the only likeness of her I could obtain.

Sincerely,
H. J. Fitzgerald.

WARNING

The weatherman has predicted another very hot summer. The leading physicians the world over are advising their people during this time to keep cool and not to get excited or overeat; to get plenty of fresh air, not to overwork and also urging them at this time to get away from the steady grind of their daily tasks and if possible to take a vacation of several weeks. But due to the high costs of living this year most people feel they cannot afford it. With this in mind and after giving the matter due consideration, I feel I have been fairly successful in helping to solve this problem.
